

The target of all mining projects plants is to mine and to recover the valuable material by implementing the most efficient and economic method. The first step in performing an audit process is to pin point the critical areas and the bottlenecks in a mining operation from the mine to the final product in order to identify the aspects that are not efficient.

Rudplan's engineering team, with its practical knowledge, experience and its cutting edge optimization tools, provides the best efficient solution for improving overall performance.